To Mrs Hal M Black

with Compliments of the Compiler

F O R E W O R D

One purpose of this compilation has been to collect and set forth in convenient form those facts of our family history which are now available, but which otherwise could be lost to posterity. A second object has been to take a step toward acquainting the scattered members of the clan with each other, and with a few of their ancestors.

The information presented here is probably inaccurate at some points and is known to be sadly lacking in completeness, especially with respect to the younger generation some of whose members have in recent years been engaged in interesting and important activities which are not properly reflected here. It is probable that these faults could have been largely avoided had the compiler been a more diligent and enthusiastic writer of letters.

Although we cannot promise a revised edition, it is probable that, in course of time, a supplement to these notes can be issued for the purpose of correcting errors, supplying omissions and adding any new matter that may come in. The compiler therefor earnestly requests that each person who sees these notes consider what help he can give toward providing the material for such a supplement and, without holding back because of modesty or otherwise, he send such material, as promptly as may be to the compiler at 2308 MacDonough Road, Wilmington 56, Delaware.

In addition it should be mentioned that information is desired as to the forbears of:

(1) President Whitten (1811-1890)

(2) Sarah Hartzell (1810-1846), wife of Jesse L. Millikan

(3) Thomas Walker (1742-1818)

THE DESCENDANTS OF

PRESIDENT WHITTEN (1811 - 1890)

AND HIS WIFE

LUCY ANN MONSON (1812 - 1890)

FIRST GENERATION

President Whitten was born in the Old Pendleton District of South Carolina, 12-24-1811. In 1833 he removed to Urbana, Ohio and in 1839 to South Bend, Ind., where he engaged in farming and blacksmithing, then in the Manufacture of wagons, and later in the hotel business. He was married 2-18-1836 at Urbana, to Lucy Ann (Monson) Wiley, widow of John Wiley. Lucy Ann Monson was the daughter of Walter and Olive Althea (Norton) Monson of Springfield, Ohio. Walter Monson was of the seventh generation descended from Capt. Thomas Munson who emigrated from Rattlesden, County Suffolk, England and settled at New Haven, Conn. in 1640. Lucy Ann Monson married first, 12-24-1833, John Wiley, who died Jan. 1835, leaving her with a son John Monson Wiley, who died in infancy.

According to the writers on genealogical subjects, the surnames Whitten, Whitton & Whiting are all variations of the same name, a name that was more or less known in England, Ireland and Scotland, as well as in the American Colonies from Maine to the Carolinas.

Of President Whittens ancestry, nothing definite is known. Family tradition and the census record of 1880 testify that his parents were natives of South Carolina. His mother's name was Sarah, but his father's given name and his mother's maiden name are lacking. For the present we may only speculate that President Whitten was of the same stock as the rather numerous family of Whittens now found in the Carolinas.

Family tradition offers no explanation of the unique baptismal name that was bestowed on President Whitten. Probably it will always remain a mystery what induced his parents to give this unusual name to a child born in the Uplands of S.C. on Christmas eve, 1811. To be sure, it is not unheard of to bestow a title at baptism. It is not unusual to christen a boy "Earl", and in the 18th century, the name "Squire" was occasionally given. For example, there was Squire Boone, who was the father of Daniel Boone. Certain it is that President Whitten found his name embarrassing, so much so, that he commonly signed himself "P. Whitten". It is as "P. Whitten" that we find him recorded on the map of Portage Tp. in the 1875 atlas of St. Joseph County; and it is as "P. Whitten" that he is listed in the census records of 1850, 1860 and 1880.

In 1833 while he was still single and was not yet 22, President Whitten left South Carolina; crossed the mountains to Ohio and settled at Urbana. So far as we know he made the trip alone, and never returned to the Southland. The date of this trip over the mountains is established by an incident which he once related to his grandson. He had stopped over-night at a cabin, and when in the morning he arose before day break and went outside, he was amazed to find the heavens literally filled with shooting stars. Evidently, what he saw was that prodigious shower of Meteors that was seen in North America on the night of Nov. 13-14, 1833.

In Ohio, President Whitten was employed as Deputy County Clerk at Urbana, and while in that position, is said to have issued his own marriage license.

Shortly before the War, President Whitten's mother, Sarah (Whitten) Robinson, having lost her second husband came from South Carolina to South Bend to live with her son. Here she remained until she died, May 31, 1869, aged 78 yrs. She was one of those whose fate it was to go through the tragic experience of having her near kin fighting on both sides of the conflict.

Lucy Ann Monson was born Aug. 20, 1812 in the village of Butternuts (now Gilbertsville) Otsego County, N.Y. She was the daughter of Walter and Olive (Norton) Monson, who, in the summer of 1814, moved with their three children from N.Y. State to Champaign Co., Ohio. Lucy Ann always maintained that she actually remembered this trip which was made by covered wagon when she was two years old. In her later years she would tell of her delight when she learned the trick of throwing her sunbonnet out the back of the wagon so as to make some one run back to get it. These recollections of Lucy Ann's establish the year 1814 as the date of the Monson family's removal from New York to Ohio and the date is confirmed by the known fact that Lucy's brother Lonson was born at Springfield the following March.

Lucy Ann's father, Walter Monson, died when he was around 30, but we do not know the exact date nor the cause of his early death. However we are inclined to doubt the report in the "Munson Record", Vol 1, p 484, to the effect that "he was a sea-captain and was lost on Lake Erie". At any rate we have found nothing in the record to confirm this story. Walter's youngest child, Lonson was born 3-15-1815, and his widow was married to Benjamin Winans, 10-26-1816. Hence we say Walter probably died 1815 or 1816.

In October 1839 President Whitten left Ohio and went to South Bend, Ind., where he remained until he died Feb. 5, 1890. At South Bend he spent several years on a place, known in the family, as the "Marsh Farm", some three miles West of town. About 1847 he moved into town and set up a blacksmith shop at the N.W. corner of Main and Washington Sts.

In those days the development of South Bend as an industrial center was at its beginning. The blacksmith shop soon developed into a wagon and carriage factory. It grew apace but not without meeting active competition from other wagon builders in the same town. These included the Chockelt Bros. and the Studebaker Bros. At this time all were producing "hand work", but when somewhat later the Studebakers secured a government contract to make wagons for the "Mormon War" and introduced Machinery to help them meet their contract, they were in position to buy out their rivals.

President Whitten was particulary proud of the fact that he was the first employer in South Bend to establish the ten-hour work-day. For the 1850's this was a truly progressive step.

After selling out to the Studebakers, President Whitten engaged in the hotel business. The St. Joseph Hotel was put up at the present site of the Oliver House. This was operated for several years, but in 1865 was burned to the ground. Later the National Hotel was built on South Lafayette St., but this also was burned.

The last few years of his life were spent on a farm West of town where he lived with his son-in-law Thomas J. Slick. In this period he became interested in honey bees and for several years operated quite a large apiary, but it is probable that this did not yield him any large profit.

It is family tradition that President Whitten left the South because he was opposed to Slavery. The tradition probably over-simplifies the matter and may be wide of the mark. It is known that in 1860 he was strongly opposed to secession and that he opposed slavery both on economic and humanitarian grounds. But in 1833, when he left the South, the burning issues in South Carolina were neither slavery nor secession. Rather they had to do with tariff, Nullification and state sovereignty. Even if his ideas on these issues were now of record that might not explain why he went North. In the war between the states, members of the Whitten tribe were found on both sides. Probably the same thing was true in the "Nullification Battle" of 1832. All that is now known is that one member of the Whitten tribe, Silas R. Whitten of Greenville, was a delegate to the Nullification convention in 1832, and was one of the handful of union delegates there who opposed Nullification. It is not known whether President Whitten was near kin to Silas.

CHILDREN OF PRESIDENT AND LUCY ANN (MONSON) WHITTEN

1. Sarah Amelia Whitten was born January 13, 1837 at Urbana, Ohio and died April 14, 1929, at Pittsburgh, Pa. Bur. at Homewood Cemetery. She was married January 27, 1858 to Daniel Matthews who was born June 3, 1831 and died at South Bend, December 16, 1866.

   In the 1850's Daniel Matthews served as Treasurer for St. Joseph County and at the time of his death was a "land agent" and had an office on Main Street opposite the "Public Square". After his death, his widow, Sarah A. Matthews, for several years had a Millinery Shop on Washington Street. The Matthews home in South Bend was on the South side of Wayne Street, West of Lafayette.

   Sarah Matthews, together with her aunt, Mrs. John W. Chess, were pioneers in the matter of wintering in Florida. Together, these two "sunshine hunters" began their visits to Florida in the early days when the only hotels in the State catering to winter tourists were to be found at Fernandina. Both continued their annual visits practically throughout their lives and this may or may not have had something to do with the fact that one of them lived to be 92 and the other 96.

   In the last years of her life Sarah Matthews removed to Pittsburgh with her daughter Mrs. Clement Crawford.

2. Olive E. Whitten was born in 1840 at South Bend. She married Harvey C. Borden, a native of New England. For a time they lived on a farm some three miles west of town, but later came into town and lived at 303 La Porte Avenue. They had three children, but of these only one, William E. Borden, lived to grow up. He was a telegrapher; had a position with the Union Pacific Ry. and lived at Salt Lake City. Will Borden married and had, at least a daughter. The parents, Harvey and Olive (Whitten) Borden went west with the son and died out there but the dates are not now available.

3. William Monson Whitten, born 3-1-1843 at South Bend; died October 26, 1927 at Punta Gorda, Fla; buried at South Bend City Cemetery.

   He married, first, September 1869, Margaret Ann Millikan, who was born, 11-6-1845, at South Bend and died there 9-23-1875. She was the daughter of Jesse L. and Sarah (Hartzell) Millikan, of Washington C. H., Ohio. Jesse L. Millikan was of the 4th generation descended from William Millikan, a Scotch-Irish immigrant, a Quaker, who settled in Chester County, Pa. in 1739; and moved to Rowan, now Randolph Co., N. C. in 1758.

   Jesse L. Millikan (son of John Millikan and Mary Wyatt) was a tanner and had tanneries at Washington C. H., Ohio and at South Bend, Ind. His wife Sarah (Hartzell) Millikan died at South Bend January 22, 1846, aged 36. He died at Washington C. H. in 1850.

Left an orphan, Margaret Ann Millikan was adopted and was brought up by David Stover (1816-1906) and his wife Calista (Hunt) Stover of South Bend. David Stover was a Stone Cutter who had a marble shop on the east side of Michigan Street between Division (now Western Ave.) and Monroe Streets. Later he had a tea and coffee store, and his wife, Calista, had a millinery shop at their home on the west side of Michigan Street between Washington and Jefferson. She was an expert flower gardener and there are those who can still (1948) recall with pleasure the little flower garden in her back yard.

William Monson Whitten married, second, 4-8-1880, Mary Agnes Elder, who was born 10-6-1845 at South Bend, the daughter of John and Emily Adelia (Sweet) Elder. John Elder, born in Scotland, 11-11-1808, a tailor by trade, came in early manhood to this country and in 1837 settled at South Bend on a farm in what is now the southeast part of the city. The Elder School Building now stands near the N. W. corner of the Elder farm. John's younger brother William Elder (1826-1901) and wife, Mary, (1822-1907) settled on a farm at Twin Branches to the east of Mishawalka. John Elder died October 7, 1895. Emily Adelia Sweet was born 3-20-1816, near Hartford, Conn., and died at South Bend, 12-9-1894. Before coming to South Bend, they had lived at Painted Post, Steuben Co., N. Y., and in Loraine Co., Ohio.

Mary Agnes died 7-11-1896 and he married, third, 9-30-1897, her sister Harriet E. Elder, who was born at South Bend, 9-4-1860, and died at Punta Gorda, Fla., 1-4-1902.

Both William Monson Whitten and his first wife, Margaret Ann Millikan, received their schooling at the Old Northern Indiana College of South Bend. The College was housed in a brick building that stood on Circle Avenue, facing east at the west end of Washington Street.

It is recalled that in later years when the College had been discontinued and the building was used as an office by the Economy Plow Works, that one could still make out the words: "Northern Indiana College" on the arch over the entrance, even though the inscription had been covered over by a coat of paint. The College President was Frank Corley, who married his former student, Mary Grace Chess, a cousin of Wm. Monson Whitten's. The Corleys removed to Louisville, Ky., where Frank became nationally prominent as an oil operator and financier.

In April 1861 President Lincoln called for 75,000 volunters to serve 90 days and Wm. Monson Whitten was one of those who answered the call. He left his studies at N. I. College and enlisted in Capt. Andrew Anderson's Co. 1, 9th Ind. Vol. Regt. which was commanded by Col. Robert H. Milroy. He served through the three-month's campaign in West Virginia and after being mustered out returned to his studies. In August of the following year he again enlisted, this time in the 21st Ind. Bat. of field Artillery. He enlisted as a private; served to the close of the war and was discharged Second Lieutenant. This Ind. Battery was brigaded with the 11th, 36th and 92nd Ohio Volunteer Infantry and formed a part of the Army of the Cumberland under Command of Gen. Geo. H. Thomas.

The 21st Battery took part in the Major Battles of Stone River, December 31, 1862 to January 2, 1863, Chicamanga September 19 and 20, 1863 and Missionary Ridge November 24, 1863.

At bloody Chicamauga, the Army of the Cumberland under Rosecrous ("Rosey") through the accident of a misunderstood order, met with a crushing defeat and it was here that Gen. Thomas earned his title "Rock of Chicamauga" when his force stood firm against heavy odds and thereby saved the union Army from actual destruction. Some critics have expressed the opinion that the Civil War might well have lasted much longer than it did, had it not been for this firm stand which was made at Chicamauga by the force under Gen. Thomas.

In general, Will Whitten was reluctant to discuss his battle experiences, but the Battle of Missionary Ridge was an exception. In this battle the troops under Gen. Thomas took some enemy trenches at the foot of the hill, and then finding themselves exposed to fire from above, rushed impetuously up the steep, 500-foot ridge and captured the strongly held fortifications at the summit. Critics agree that this action was one of the most remarkable known to military history and some even refer to it as almost a miracle.

Wm. Monson Whitten was an engineer; he was city engineer at South Bend from 1872 to 1896; served several terms as County Surveyor, and as Drainage Commissioner for St. Joseph County. From 1888 to 1892 he was the Indiana State Engineer on the Kankakee River Improvements.

In 1899 he moved to Punta Gorda, Fla., invested in land, and engaged in fruit growing.

In Florida, he served several terms as County Commissioner of De Sota County, and when Charlotte County was created, he served in the same capacity for the New County. Having had much experience in Indiana in road building, bridge building and drainage of swamp lands, he interested himself in these same lines in Florida. He has been credited with being largely responsible for the first good roads in his section of the state and for the building of the Charlotte Harbor Bridge which was the link that made possible the Tamiami Trail from Tampa to Miami.

April 19, 1860, when he was 17 yrs. old, Will Whitten, in company with a party of South Benders started for Pikes Peak in search of gold. The pocket note-book which he carried on this trip is still extant and can be read through with some difficulty. The journal is very interesting, though it omits many things we would like known. Although gold was the objective, gold is never mentioned in the journal, perhaps because there was none to to mention.

The party went by train as far as Rock Island and from there by covered wagon. They arrived at Pikes Peak early in June, and took up claims. For the first few days the journal records "prospects pretty good", but a few days later "did not make enough to buy salt for bread". In September three of these adventurers, Will Whitten, Aaron Lee and Ben Jackson "sold their shares in the Company" and returned to "the States". The journal ends when the three arrived at Omaha November 1, 1860.

Family tradition has it that enough gold was brought back to make one finger ring. Unfortunately the Journal does not give a list of the South Benders who took part in this adventure but tradition has it that Thomas Jefferson Slick was one of them.

4. Laura Ann Whitten, was born 11-28-1844 at South Bend and died there 8-29-1926. She married, 8-18-1862, Thomas Jefferson Slick who was born 8-27-1841 in Lancaster Co., Pa. and died at South Bend 5-17-1919. He was the son of Samuel H. and Mary (Yount) Slick who were married about 1835 in Lancaster Co., Pa., moved to Canal Fulton, Ohio, and in 1860 to South Bend. Samuel Slick was born in 1814 and died in 1877. His wife, Mary Yount was born in 1815 and died in 1886 at South Bend. Mary Yount was of the 4th generation descended from the immigrant George Yount, who was born 3-14-1719 in Alsace, then a part of France. He married Margaretta Hinkle of Hinkletown, Pa., and died there 9-15-1770.

Two weeks after he was married August 18, 1862, Thomas Jefferson Slick left for service as a volunteer with the 21st Indiana Battery; and he continued in the service for 3½ years and took part in the Major battles of Stone River, Chicamauga and Missionary Ridge.

The war over, Thomas Slick returned to South Bend and he and his brother John operated a grocery business on West Washington Street. To provide for growing families, the brothers bought lots and built themselves frame houses side-by-side on South Main Street opposite the present location of the Pennsylvania Station. Along side the Slicks lived Mrs. Nan (Sample) Harmon (called Auntie Harmon) and just across the street in a brick house in a large, well-shaded lot, lived Elliott Tutt who had married Margaret (Sample) Monson, widow of Albert Monson, eldest brother of Lucy Ann (Monson) Whitten.

In recent years, this locality on South Main Street has become anything but a desirable residence district, but in the 1870's it was otherwise, in spite of the near proximity of the Studebaker Shops and the Lake Shore Ry. (now the N. Y. Central).

In that day, Main Street was dead-ended a half square south of Canal (now Bronson) Street, and this short length of street was left ungraded and was overgrown with grass which was kept close-cropped by the cows that were then allowed to run at large. This dead-ended section of Main Street was known as "The Commons" and for the children of the neighborhood, was a delightful place to play. The end of the street was closed off by a high untrimmed hedge of osage orange and beyond the hedge was "Wadhams Orchard". Back in the orchard was the pleasant, one-story brick house, home of Mr. Wadhams and his son-in-law, Mr. H. C. Morgan. This apple orchard was all that was left of the Wadhams farm, the remaining acres having been taken over by the growing town.

Now this self-contained little community received a rude shock when, in the late seventies the Town, now proudly calling itself a "City", proposed to open up Main Street; to cut a 99-foot swath right through the middle of the orchard; and thereby destroy the children's beloved "commons" and the privacy of the community.

Mr. Wadhams fought the project manfully but in the end was forced to yield to the demands of Progress and to accept $2000 damages from the city. Had he been something of a philosopher he might well have seen a resemblance between his unhappy lot and that of the Redman who has found that no hereditary title can stand against the needs of advancing civilization.

The transformation of this district was completed, when some years later the Vandalia Ry. came up here from Indianapolis and took over both the Wadhams house and the Tutt house. For a time the former was used as a station, but later both were torn down replaced by other structures.

Thomas Slick was a man of great energy which may have had something to do with the fact that after a few years he quit the grocery business and with his growing family removed to the "Marsh Farm" three miles west of town.

Sometime during the 1880's John Y. Slick, brother of Thomas, started the first steam laundry in South Bend, and from that day to this various members of the Slick family have been leaders in the laundry business in South Bend, Gary and Ft. Wayne.

In late middle life Thomas J. Slick, left the farm, came back to town and lived at 114 Marquette Avenue, engaged with other members of the Slick family in the laundry business, and for a time served as assessor for St. Joseph Co. He died May 7, 1919 and his widow died August 30, 1926. Both are buried at Riverview Cemetery.
